

XS SIGHT SYSTEMS
www.xssights.com
888-744-4880

"Standing flat-footed during a sunny afternoon on the square range won't sell you on XS® Sights. Move your feet, shoot on your back, negotiate a shoot house—then you'll appreciate the value of the 24/7 Big Dot sight."
- Paul Markel, studentofthegun.com

MADE IN U.S.A. STUDENT OF THE GUN
WWW.STUDENTOFTHEGUN.COM

"Thanks to Magna-Arm, my gun is there when I need it."
A., Winston-Salem, NC

MAGNA-ARM
Magnetic Firearm Concealment

For more information, visit www.MAGNA-ARM.com

PARACORD

THE PARACORD SPECIALISTS
f PARACORD.COM

GUN RIGHTS

Continued from page 68

someone) about holding the dinner there. "OMG, that's soooo hard, I'm dyin', you're killin' me here..." Some patriot you are. Okay sport, make it Dutch treat. I'm even asking Handgunner's editor to do this. (Editor's Note: I'm in! I'll show a picture of our gathering in an upcoming Insider column.)

In the Cartridge Family Band's song ACLU, they point out a weakness in that group's agenda. It's the same hole half the nation suffers from: "There are no guns in their judicial fights. There's nine amendments in their Bill of Rights"

Bill of Rights Day is the cure for this. Only the most ideological enemies could stand up and oppose Bill of Rights Day on the grounds that 10 percent of the amendments protect the right to keep and bear arms. Gun-rights advocates sometimes think the Second Amendment is the most important one of all, but each amendment is an equally crucial inseparable part of a unified whole. You need Tenth Amendment federalism, and free speech, and juries — and all the rest.

You should recall, and if you read the Bill from a parchment facsimile like we have been doing, you will see — the Bill was one proposed amendment to the Constitution, composed of twelve Articles, ten of which were ratified and later renamed as individual amendments. It's all amendment number one in reality.

Exercise Your Freedom

When we're finished reading, we discuss the health of the Bill of Rights in Town Hall fashion. This is the best part. Then you are literally using the First Amendment's right to assemble to redress grievances, as the Founders intended. Ask the people assembled how healthy they think the Bill of Rights is, why it isn't better, and what can be done about it. Be the emcee.

In many countries you can be arrested for doing this. There, you are bordering on sedition, talking about what's wrong with government, how it is acting against your rights and best interests, and how to stop those encroachments. Here, this is protected speech, and that is protected by the force of arms. Bill of Rights Day is a message to government that we people are the rulers — and government is the servant. It's a message you should help send from your neck of the woods.

Alan Korwin's company Bloomfield Press/gunlaws.com is the largest publisher and distributor of plain-English gun-law books in the country. See the Bill of Rights Day page at gunlaws.com.